Executive Summary

Quick Answer

Here are some of the latest AI news highlights from recent sources:

- Klarna is partnering with Google's UCP to enable AI-powered payment agents.
- Thailand launched the Sora app, one of the first AI-driven apps in Asia.
- Malaysia introduced Ryt Bank, its first AI-based banking service.
- AI hiring in India is growing faster than overall IT recruitment, showing strong demand for AI talent.
- AI agent technology is advancing but slower than initially expected.
- Experts like MIT's Phillip Isola explain how AI agents work and what the future holds for them.

Explanation

AI continues to expand in finance, with companies like Klarna and Malaysia's Ryt Bank using AI to improve payments and banking. Asian markets like Thailand are early adopters of AI apps. Meanwhile, the job market for AI specialists is booming, especially in India, though some AI tech areas like agent systems are progressing more cautiously. Thought leaders are helping clarify AI's real capabilities versus hype, especially around AI agents that can act autonomously.
